

ROYAL FAMILY IS ON WAR RATIONS

King George and Queen Mary Among First to Conform to Rigorous Rules.

WHITE HOUSE OBEYS
Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Conforms to All Food Administration Orders.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—King George and Queen Mary were among the first in England, as was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in the United States, to make their household conform to the rigorous rationing system of a food minister or administrator. Like the White House at Washington, the royal family and staff at Buckingham palace have been placed on the diet suggested by the man chosen to conserve the nation's food supply, in England Lord Rhonda.

From the early days of the Ministry of Food the king has insisted that every suggestion for self-denial which has been put before the people of the country must be loyally observed throughout the royal household.

King and Queen Set Example.
Sir Derek Keppel, master of the household, said in an interview this week:

"We are all in line here with the rationing, and I am saying no more than what is common knowledge when I tell you that I never knew any people so thoroughly conscientious in this matter as the king and queen. They accept the restrictions with the most noticeable cheerfulness, taking real pleasure in bearing their share of the food hardships."

"The royal household is a large and varying one. Its changing character makes some difficulty in the rationing, but if any error is made in the calculation it is in the direction of 'less' rather than 'more.' We keep in constant touch with the Ministry of Food, learning each day whatever new regulations may be impending."

"Quite often recently the royalarder has been empty of such commodities as butter, margarine, and tea, and we have gone without, from king down. The king and queen have repeatedly spoken to me to impress me with the duty of self-denial in food and drink. The king in the first days of the war pledged himself to total abstinence from alcoholic beverages, and that pledge holds good today over the whole household."

The king actually tries always to imitate restrictions. A long while ago he insisted on coal economy in the palace. Waste of fuel or coal constitutes a grave offense among the servants of the king."

While making the rounds the other day, a deputy sheriff was seized with a pain in the pit of his stomach. He stepped into a local drug store and asked for something to relieve this pain. He was given a dose of white powder in some warm water. He said the pain left him before he had gone no blocks. I went back, says the deputy to the drug store to find out what I had taken, and was told by the druggist that it was the new treatment for stomach trouble, called CAYE'S STOMACH POWDER. I guess it was a new treatment, because I never had anything relieve me of this pain due to the GAS ON THE STOMACH as quick as this did. I would suggest anyone with stomach trouble try about 4 ozs. with take one level teaspoonful in warm water after meals.—Advertisement.

MOVEMENT OF CORN
CARGOES IMPROVING

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Although a continued improvement in the movement of corn to markets is shown in reports today to the railroad administration, the quantity of wheat transported remains at about one-third normal despite efforts of the government to induce farmers to release what they have on hand.

State food administrators have been instructed by the food administration to appeal to farmers to market before May 1 all the wheat they hold, except that required for seedling purposes.

SUNDAY SERVICES
AT THE TABERNACLE

Elder Nathan J. Harris delivered a timely sermon yesterday afternoon at the tabernacle, taking up for discussion the present-day tendency of many people of wealth and high station in life to put wealth and pleasure before the gospel of Jesus Christ.

There was a large attendance at the meeting and a special musical program was rendered by the Tabernacle choir and soloists under the direction of Prof. Joseph Ballantyne, as follows:

Organ prelude, Melodie in A..... Guilmant
Solo and chorus, "There's a Green Hill Far Away".....
Duet and chorus, "When I Can Read My Title Clear".....
Agnes Warner, Jed Ballantyne and choir.
Organ postlude, "O Salutaris Hostie"..... Guilmant
Sam Whitaker.

AND THERE IT ENDED.
Policyholder—I nearly had my skull fractured on the icy sidewalk yesterday. Don't I get something for that?

DEFECTS IN FOOD REGULATIONS OF THE COUNTRY

Editor Ogden Standard: As all good citizens are, or should be, interested in anything, and everything intended to promote the efficiency of our war machine at this time; and as many suggestions are made from time to time, I wonder if you will indulge me, if I also offer a few remarks?

Economy, conservation, optimism, common sense, an increased production of "everything," the absolute squelching of the croaker, the alertness for any discordant note intended to aid or give comfort to the enemy—all these and many other equally important working principles, should receive the most careful consideration of every individual, and should elicit our most earnest co-operation.

I trust that I may be pardoned, if I attempt to offer a few comments upon some of the "rules and regulations" laid down relative to some of the above.

First, we are urged to economize time, food, clothing, etc. This advice is wholesome and very timely. Then, in order that we may economize in time, we are urged for instance to make only one delivery of merchandise per day. This, it is claimed, will release men, teams, clerks, etc. for employment at other necessary labor. This seems reasonable. Then we are advised that we must purchase sugar in not to exceed ten pound lots. This will necessitate ten trips in the delivery of 100 pounds of sugar, whereas many would aid the cause of infrequent deliveries by ordering this amount (one hundred pounds) for one delivery. I am told that there is any amount of sugar in the west. I also understand that it is not the desire of the food administrators to particularly curtail the legitimate, reasonable use of sugar, or any other food stuff; that they only desire that we practice frugality and economy; that we use a proper variety of foods; that we may thereby release greater relative quantities of certain staples for export to our boys across the sea, as well as to those on this side the waters, and to our allies would it not, therefore, be a more convenient economy of time, and money if people who desire to buy in quantity, but with no desire to hoard, be not only permitted but encouraged to do so? Let dealers limit their deliveries to one or two per week if possible. This, of course, could not be done, say, in the case of meats, butter, milk, etc., but certainly could be done with most groceries. The same reason might be urged for the sale and delivery of greater quantities of flour, meal and other flour substitutes. People are, as a rule, willing to be fair in their purchases of these things, and no one would suffer, but instead a very great economy would be effected, if people were permitted to purchase what they desire and in any quantity they wish, but to remember that they are not to hoard. This latter tendency could be prohibited by a suitable "card system," if necessary.

Prices on flour substitutes are soaring continually. If indeed one can secure the recognized substitutes at any price. This unreasonable advance in price should and could be prohibited. They say that there is a great demand for some of these hence the advance in prices. This old flimsy excuse, for greed should be relegated to the scrap heap as an excuse for the unreasonable advancing of prices. Messrs Supply and Demand have been charged with much that is not particularly to their credit, whereas supply and demand never did and never will fix prices on anything. Supply and demand undoubtedly play a great part in the scheme of things. But the only thing that can beside aid of them as a determining factor in fixing prices, is that supply and demand is a condition that gives men a chance to show what they will do when they see the opportunity. This, of course, applies equally to the purchaser and the seller, the producer and the consumer.

I am aware that the fixing of prices by the government, involves much that is as yet debatable. Yet if we are to expect the whole-hearted co-operation of all of us, we must at the same time so arrange matters as to compel the feeling that we are all being considered, and not the producers, dealers, manufacturers or any seemingly select class or business. Then there will be frugality, economy, optimism and efficient co-operation on the part of all of us. For we must win this war. Who would want to live in a Prussianized America? In order to do this, we must make and practice rules and regulations that will really work out as intended. We must not be "penny wise and pound foolish."

SINKS SUBMARINE BY ACCURATE FIRE

WASHINGTON, March 17.—How the armed guard of the steamship Borinquen sank an attacking German submarine was disclosed today when Secretary of the Navy Daniels formally commended the coolness and precise action of Chief Gunner's Mate Thomas J. Beerman, U. S. N., commander of the armed guard.

In his report to the navy department, Chief Gunner's Mate Beerman says he was in his quarters at work on the log when a shout of warning came from one of the men at the gun. One shot was sent at the submarine, the commander reaching his station just as the second shot was fired. It was 11:45 o'clock at night, October 30 last. A dark object lay in the water off the port bow. The weather was misty and foggy. The object was made out to be a submarine, and it was seventy or eighty yards away.

"The submarine was lying to when first sighted," the commander reported. "We think she was receiving news from headquarters. I did not see the first shot, but the petty officer said the first shot went over the top of the submarine's conning tower. She was about three points abaft the port beam. As the captain was putting the ships stern to the submarine the third shot was fired. I saw it hit and explode. Before the helmsman could get control of the ship the submarine lay off the starboard quarter in the trough of the sea. After the second shot the submarine seemed to stop and lie in the trough of the sea at the mercy of the gun. The fourth shot fell ten to twenty-five yards short. When last seen the submarine was going down on the swell, with her bow sticking in the air and stern down. She was going down in an upright position."

The commander of the armed guard gave his own praise to the captain of the Borinquen for the excellent manner in which the ship was handled.

SWISS DEMAND
AN INDEMNITY

BERNE, Friday, March 15.—The Swiss government has sent a note to the German government demanding the payment of an indemnity for the destruction of the grain steamer Sar-dinero. The note also requests careful investigation of the circumstances by the German authorities.

The Spanish steamer Sardonio, under charter by the Swiss government, was torpedoed February 26. She was conveying 3000 tons of wheat from the United States. The sinking aroused strong feeling in Switzerland and pro-ally newspapers have urged that the bread rations of the German colony in Switzerland be cut as a reprisal.

loosens and releases phlegm easily. It is splendid for bronchial and in-

Mrs. W. S. Bailey, Lancaster, Ky., coughed almost continuously day and night, until she took Foley's Honey and Tar. After taking half a bottle, her cough began to slow up, and seven bottles easily cured her cough.
